

The Queen's Head, Kirkby Malzeard. 1835.

Whilst going through documents at North Yorkshire County Records Office (NYCRO) I came across a poster telling of the Sale of The Queen's Head at Kirkby Malzeard to be held on 9th November 1835.

Being born at Kirkby, I took a closer look. It was owned by Mr Gill at the time, and there were several cottages tenanted out, included in the sale. All very interesting.

However, I was folding it up to put away, when I noticed on the back of the poster was a hand-drawn diagram of the properties involved. It shows that there was a passage through between the public house and the two cottages into the yard. These cottages were most likely to have been inhabited by some of the names mentioned on the poster. The Cottage or Tenement in the occupation of William Cass must have been the garden, out-offices and house behind the pub which is on Church Street. Not sure about the long strip that widens out down the side into the back yard. An alley way perhaps.

Recorded on the 1841 census, there is Henry Buckle aged 70, a butcher with Ellen Buckle 30 and Mary 2.

John Spence is 35 and a shoemaker with Ann 35, Mary 12, Thomas 10, Elizabeth 8, Alice 6 and William 2

John Shepherd is aged 70 and a Common Cryer.

There is no William Pratt, but there are two children named Maria Pratt aged 7 and Abraham Pratt 12.

(Further research finds there was an Abraham Pratt, Gentleman, in 1848)

William Cass was 40 and a sadler, with Elizabeth 35, Isabella 12, John 8, Mary 3 and Charles 1.

It mentions three John Gill's, with their families, aged 39, 40 and 70. They were all stonemasons.

Further research states that in the early 1880's Robert Ascough was at the Queen's Head, and in 1851 and 1861 the innkeeper was William Wood.

The date on the end of the pub building today, at the top of the steps is 1882, maybe that is when they incorporated the passageway to make one building? Around the same time another public house called The Manor House was knocked down.

It stood on the corner of the cross roads next to Garden House and was run by George Musgrave. It is thought that Tomyns Dickins, Barrister, living at Mowbray House didn't want a public house on his land!

The Alms Houses were built 1848.

Hand drawn diagram on the back of the poster

'In the year 1848, the first idea of a Mechanics Institute sprung up in Kirkby Malzeard. After which a small building, then standing in the garden behind the old wooden stocks on the south side of the Market Cross, was engaged for the purpose, this was soon found to be too small, hence the present building which was completed by voluntary subscription in the year 1852. The chief promoters being, Robert Gatenby, William Bonwell and Thomas Hudson.

Tickets for opening of institute 'To be had of Messers Bonwell, [Abrahm]Pratt, [Gentleman]Wood, Gill, Crabtree, Russell, Helliwell, Hudson (Secretary) at the Institution. N B. The number of tickets is limited.'
